About CICH (The Canadian Institute for Child Health)

For more than 25 years, the Canadian Institute of Child Health (CICH) has been making major differences in the lives of Canada's children. Each time an infant is safely buckled into a car seat or a child wears a bicycle helmet correctly, you see the work of CICH. Every time you fill your car with unleaded gasoline, you're helping protect our children from the harmful effects of lead - thanks to CICH's efforts. And when a new parent knows to put a baby to sleep on her back, reducing the risk of sudden infant death syndrome, CICH has reached out to another child. From research and policy recommendations to community development and resource-building the Institute has touched the life of virtually every child in Canada.
